Shards echo through my body.
Sunken, painful fragments of language.

Between the living notes the empty blank space of the manuscript is aching in its silence.

Where do the flakes of words go again?

The bounced fragments scatter,
do I miss them, having sunk them into silence?

Holding onto the unspoken shards and the blank space that didn't come alive, my gaze falls downward, downward, downward.
